I believe at a time when every penny counts and making the most of everything as a small business is the only way I can survive and person who has no other methods to make a living is with my house. Giving even one more penny to these corrupt poser company's who pollute the air and then claim it was us who had to have the power only to say no you cant make your own power. The hypocrisy of the political organized big business lobby driven government is just sad. So here is a chance to give a little control back to the little guy. Net metering is the key to an individual making money or just saving money on there house and make power that is clean and would other wise just heat up my house. This kind of power could get ride of Peaker plants which are the dirtiest and the worst most costly.. This kind of set up is made to get ride of that spot in the power curve that everybody says renewables cant fill but with battiers and other backup we can.
