It's time to put Duke under the government's and voters thumb. We need clean air, land and water and Duke isn't interested. Corporate greed is their driving and only force.

Many states are using wind, sun and hydro efficiently and profitably. I was a solar user in Massachusetts for my residence and with reduced $/kwh and net metering, my power Co., National Grid, and I had an amicable and profitable relationship.

The zero pollution was an enormous plus. Let's get Duke into the 21st century, even if we have to drag them in kicking and screaming. They have no legal or moral right to do business like this.

Respectfully,

Dr. John Rhicard

Hi, Duke Energy's solar program is a very poor plan and in some or many cases will be a loss for customers who invest. Close investigation is important. A reasonable payment for net metering of energy produced by home solar projects is extremely important but Duke Energy has a poor track record in other states of fair compensation for energy produced.
