In the Matter of

Application of Duke Energy Progress, LLC, Pursuant to N.C.G.S. § 62-133.2 and Commission Rule R8-55 Regarding Fuel and Fuel-Related Cost Adjustments for Electric Utilities) PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has scheduled a public hearing on an annual fuel and fuel-related charge adjustment proceeding for Duke Energy Progress, LLC (DEP). The public hearing has been scheduled to begin Tuesday, September 21, 2021, at 10:00 a.m., in Commission Hearing Room 2115, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. The proceeding is being held pursuant to the provisions of N.C.G.S. § 62-133.2 and Commission Rule R8-55 for the purpose of determining whether an increment or decrement rider is required in order to reflect changes in the cost of fuel and fuel-related costs over or under the base fuel rate established for DEP in its last general rate case. Public witness testimony will be received in accordance with Commission Rule R1-21(g).

Duke Energy Progress filed an application and testimony relative to the subject matter of the proceeding on June 15, 2021. The proposed change in rates is related to fuel and fuel-related costs. The proposed change would result in a decrease of the present fuel and fuel-related rates of all customer classes, with the amount of the decrease varying for different customer classes. The decrease in the monthly bill of a typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month would be $0.10, excluding the regulatory fee. The change in all fuel and fuel-related rates would be effective for service rendered on and after December 1, 2021.

recommendation was the amount of students who are ineligible for the vaccine (those younger than 12 years old). Additionally, there is an absence of a system to determine the number of students who are vaccinated in each classroom.

If students were not required to wear masks, Smith said that quarantines of students could occur and a shift back to the hybrid model of in-person and virtual person from last year could be a possibility. Smith said that the universal masking will prevent that from happening.

Chairman Wiley Mabe called the universal masking policy "prudent."

Changes in COVID-19-related policies this year

The universal masking requirement allows for changes from the previous COVID-19 affected school year.

Field trips and assemblies will be permitted for the upcoming school year. Students will no longer be kept in separate cohorts. Traffic flow in the hallways, which was previously directed by staff and signs, will not be monitored. Daily symptom and temperature screenings which were conducted each morning will not take place this year.

"If you've ever been outside of school at 7:30 in the morning, you know that there are long lines because of the temperature checks," Smith said. "We can eliminate that and get back to a more normal routine."

There is no longer a limit on non-essential visitors.

Masks may be removed when students are outside.

Smith said that all of these changes, with a policy of universal masking, will reduce transmission of COVID-19.

Fewer than 1 in 3,000 students who were in school buildings became infected with COVID-19, according to The ABC Science Collaborative. The Collaborative also stated that when students and teachers are phone call," Smith said. Schools will continue to wipe down and clean high-touch areas, such as handrails and door knobs. Water fountains will still be unavailable for the next school year.

Students are no longer limited to eating lunch in the classroom. Smith said that schools are currently working on plans that will allow for students to eat in the safest manner possible.

Smith concluded by saying that the universal masking allows for and supports in-person learning for the upcoming school year.

Richmond Early College High School will have their first day of school on August 11. Other RCS schools will begin on August 23.

entrance, social distancing to the extent possible and asking staff to wear masks while indoors unless they're in an isolated office.

The Health Department has only been putting out its local COVID-19 Dashboard on a weekly basis since the cases slowed down over the early summer months. Following a suggestion from Vice Chair Justin Dawkins, who called into the meeting remotely, Land said they would likely return to posting it daily, which Dawkins said would help to raise the awareness of the severity of the pandemic's impact locally and hopefully encourage more to get vaccinated.

Land said that there are an average of about 30 people a day getting their first dose of the Moderna vaccine. About 41% of the eligible population has received at least one dose of the vaccine, according to Land, but he said this is "still not where we need to be." Interim Health Director Cheryl Speight agreed, saying in an email that the reason Richmond County was deemed to be at a "critical" level of community spread as of July 17 was due to the low vaccination rate and the prevalence of the new, more contagious delta variant.

"One major cause of our increase in cases is a low vaccination rate for our county and the spread of the highly transmissible Delta variant among mostly unvaccinated individuals," Speight said. "The main solution is to increase vaccination rates. If individuals are not eligible for the vaccine or choose not to get vaccinated, masks and social distancing in groups of people other than those in their household is recommended."

She added that anyone with concerns about taking the vaccine should talk to a trusted medical provider and, in the meantime she urged those who are hesitant to take the vaccine to "please protect yourself and those close to you by wearing a mask and keeping a safe dis-

The only other county to have been at the "critical" level of community spread since July, according to the most recent data, was Bladen County. While Richmond County's hospital and medical providers are only seeing a "slight impact" to their availability of hospital beds, it's the 14-day case rate per 100,000 people and the 14-day percent positive statistics that are pushing Richmond County above the rest.

Asked whether she thinks that the relaxation of restrictions locally has contributed to the county's increased spread, Speight said the rules weren't relaxed too quickly, and that the posture the county was in prior to this new spate of restrictions — which allowed for vaccinated individuals to go without masks and social distancing, but continued to require unvaccinated people to mask and social distance — was sufficient.

The state is offering incentives for people to get vacinated. Starting Aug. 4, the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services will fund $100 gift cards (while supplies last) from the Richmond County Health Department to those over the age of 18 who get vaccinated to offset the time and transportation costs it takes them to get to the vaccination site.

Additionally, the state has allocated $445,281 to the Richmond County Health Department to enhance the county's surveillance, epidemiology, lab capacity, infection control, mitigation, communications, and other preparedness and response activities involved in fighting the pandemic. The Board of Commissioners unanimously approved the budget amendment to allow for these funds Tuesday.

RALEIGH — Interest in COVID-19 vaccines has surged in the week since North Carolina's governor announced that his administration would boost the financial incentive from $25 to $100 for unvaccinated residents who come in for their first shot this month.

While a number of factors are contributing to people's decision to get vaccinated, including the rising spread of the more contagious delta variant, state health officials are hopeful even more people will choose to get vaccinated now that Democratic Gov. Roy Cooper has decided to follow President Joe Biden's advice to give out $100 rewards.

"Many of our providers distributed all of their cards in a single day after we announced the shift to $100 last week," said Catie Armstrong, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Health and Human Services. "One of our providers went from distributing 1,000 cards per week to 3,000 in two days."

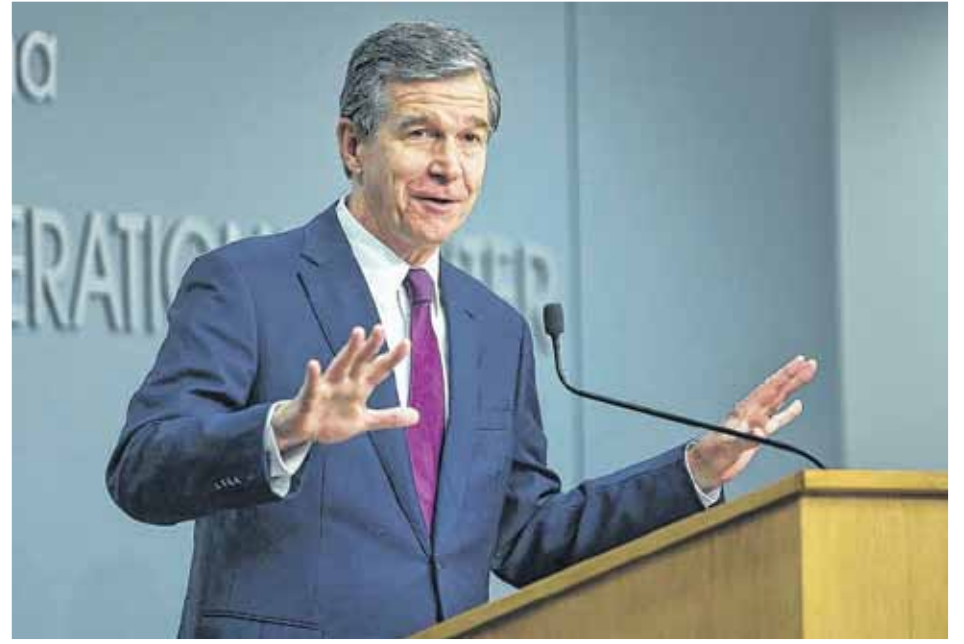

Drivers who take people in for their first shot remain eligible for one $25 prepaid credit card, while those who get the shot can now receive four cards in $25 denominations.

Armstrong said the department has worked to remove from its website the vaccination sites where providers have run out of cash cards, though she said supplies should soon be replenished.

About 38,000 $25 cards have been issued since the state launched its pilot program in May. Armstrong said the cards are shipped to vaccine providers on a weekly basis based on anticipated demand. The department has ordered roughly $1.8 million worth of cards for delivery this week, she said.

Data collected by the state health department and shared with The Associated Press shows nearly 18,000 page loads on the incentives section of the website during the entire month of July, when the cash reward being offered was $25. But since Cooper's announcement last week, the section has seen more than 66,000 page loads — a 269% increase.

North Carolina last week held its fourth and final lottery for two separate prizes of $1 million and a $125,000 college scholarship. Its effectiveness has been less clear, given the state had continued to see waning interest in COVID-19 vaccines after the lottery was first announced in June.

"It's hard to know exactly what combination of factors draws people in to get vaccinated, and I think one thing builds upon the other," Cooper said in a news conference last week.

"As much information as we can get out there (and) as much incentive as we can get out there, the better off that we are."

Republican State Treasurer Dale Folwell, who was hospitalized with COVID-19 in March 2020, said in an interview Tuesday that the cash cards wouldn't have been needed if the state had done a better job promoting the shots this past winter by recognizing geographic differences in how people view vaccines. Folwell, who has been vaccinated, opposed the lottery.

"We were totally flat-footed on the rollout of this vaccine, which has put us in a position now where we had to give $1 million to a person who has already been vaccinated, have a vaccine lottery and now these cash cards," Folwell said. "It's an attempt to steer the focus away from how botched the rollout was."

Regardless of the motivating forces, the pace of vaccinations has climbed in recent weeks, with nearly 80,000 people coming in for an initial dose in each of the past two weeks. More North Carolinians got their first COVID-19 shot last week than on any given week since the week of May 24, according to state health department data.

BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

In the Matter of
Application of Duke Energy Progress, LLC, Pursuant to N.C.G.S. § 62-133.2 and Commission Rule R8-55 Regarding Fuel and Fuel-Related Cost Adjustments for Electric Utilities) PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has scheduled a public hearing on an annual fuel and fuel-related charge adjustment proceeding for Duke Energy Progress, LLC (DEP). The public hearing has been scheduled to begin Tuesday, September 21, 2021, at 10:00 a.m., in Commission Hearing Room 2115, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. The proceeding is being held pursuant to the provisions of N.C.G.S. § 62-133.2 and Commission Rule R8-55 for the purpose of determining whether an increment or decrement rider is required in order to reflect changes in the cost of fuel and fuel-related costs over or under the base fuel rate established for DEP in its last general rate case. Public witness testimony will be received in accordance with Commission Rule R1-21(g).

Duke Energy Progress filed an application and testimony relative to the subject matter of the proceeding on June 15, 2021. The proposed change in rates is related to fuel and fuel-related costs. The proposed change would result in a decrease of the present fuel and fuel-related rates of all customer classes, with the amount of the decrease varying for different customer classes. The decrease in the monthly bill of a typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month would be $0.10, excluding the regulatory fee. The change in all fuel and fuel-related rates would be effective for service rendered on and after December 1, 2021.

Further information may be obtained from the Office of the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, on the Commission's website at www.ncuc.net.

In the Matter of
Application of Duke Energy Progress, LLC, for Approval of Demand-Side Management and Energy Efficiency Cost Recovery Rider Pursuant to N.C.G.S. § 62-133.9 and Commission Rule R8-69) PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has scheduled a public hearing in the annual demand-side management (DSM) and energy efficiency (EE) cost recovery proceeding for Duke Energy Progress, LLC (DEP). The public hearing has been scheduled to begin immediately following the hearing in Docket No. E-2, Sub 1272, which is scheduled to begin at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, September 21, 2021, in Commission Hearing Room 2115, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. This proceeding is being held pursuant to the provisions of § 62-133.9 and Commission Rule R8-69, for the purpose of determining whether an increment or decrement rider is required to allow DEP to recover all reasonable and prudent costs incurred for adoption and implementation of new DSM and new EE measures and appropriate incentives. Public witness testimony will be received in accordance with Commission Rule R1-21(g).

On June 15, 2021, Duke Energy Progress filed its application for approval of DSM/EE cost recovery pursuant to N.C.G.S. § 62-133.9 and Rule R8-69. By its application DEP requests a total annual revenue increase of approximately $8.1 million, effective January 1, 2022, from the DSM/EE rider currently in effect. This request would result in an increase of 0.067 cents per kilowatt-hour (kWh) for residential customers. Non-residential General Service customers, depending upon their participation in DEP's DSM or EE programs, would see a DSM rider decrease of 0.010 cents per kWh, and an EE rider decrease of 0.023 cents per kWh. Lighting customers would see an EE rider increase of 0.036 cents per kWh. Industrial and large commercial customers that have, under N.C.G.S. § 62-133.9, opted out of and never participated in DEP's DSM and EE programs are not subject to the rider.

Further information may be obtained by the public from the Office of the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission on the Commission's website at www.ncuc.net.

The Public Staff is authorized by statute to represent consumers in proceedings before the Commission. Correspondence concerning the DSM/EE rider proceeding and the hearing scheduled thereon should be directed to the Public Staff. Written statements to the Public Staff should include any information that the writers wish to be considered by the Public Staff in its investigation of the matter. Such statements should be addressed to Christopher J. Ayers, Executive Director, Public Staff, 4326 Mail Service Center, Raleigh, North Carolina 27699-4300.

The Attorney General is also authorized by statute to represent consumers in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Attorney General should be addressed to The Honorable Josh Stein, Attorney General, c/o Consumer Protection-Utilities, 9001 Mail Service Center, Raleigh, North Carolina, 27699-9001. Written statements are not evidence unless the writers appear at a public hearing and testify concerning the information contained in their written statements.
